Land between fire and ice

One of the most spectacular countries on earth, Chile is framed by more than 2,500 miles (4,000 km) of mountains and a coastline just as long. This lavishly illustrated book of panorama photography presents “the last corner of the world,” from the deserts of the Atacama in the north to the cliffs of Patagonia in the south, from South America's highest peak to the sands of the Pacific. A broad spectrum of topics and a comprehensive travel section introduce this land of fire and ice.
